

Intern with RAINFOREST RELIEF's ForestBanana™ Project in Talamanca, Costa Rica

IN THE TALAMANCA REGION OF COSTA RICA, hundreds of farmers have taken back the land from conventional banana companies and are now growing bananas and cacao under the canopy of the forest, organically and in democratic coöperatives.

Rainforest Relief is helping these growers find ways to level their income, break the dependency on conventional juicers and show the world their model of sustainable banana production.

Spend the summer in the rainforest while you help small farmers restore forests and achieve fair trade and sustainable development.
